Recognition of the importance of clinical trials to the pharmaceutical industry led to the creation of the Center for Drug Evaluation and Research in 1981. The Center's mission was to protect the rights, safety and well-being of human subjects participating in clinical drug development and research. This article highlights issues regarding the development and implementation of regulations for protecting the rights, safety and well-being of human subjects participating in clinical drug development and research. The agency regulations are discussed in detail, including the following: Title 21, Code of Federal Regulations, Part 50, "Ethical Considerations for Human Subject Research Involving Interviews and Questionnaires"; Title 21, Code of Federal Regulations, Part 52, "Nondrug Protocols, Including Standard Protocol Operating Procedures, Good Clinical Practices, and Protocol Review and Monitoring Systems"; and Title 21, Code of Federal Regulations, Part 56, "Human Subject Research: Waiver and Waiver of Consent." The article also discusses important federal regulations such as the Common Rule, the Food and Drug Administration (FDA)
